DENIS BUNKER

900 metres of vaulted passages, cut into the rock below Petrov Hill. A system of passages, intersecting at right angles. In the event of a nuclear attack, it would have been possible to survive inside the shelter for up to 4 days. In terms of water, electricity and a breathable air mixture, the shelter was self-sufficient. Cramped spaces could have provided refuge for up to 3000 inhabitants. Today, its long and empty corridors serve only as a depository for masonry fragments of King's Chapel (Královská kaple), which once stood on the corner of Veselá Street and Dominican Square (Dominikánské nám.).

WATER TANKS IN ŽLUTÝ KOPEC

The grass-grown area on Yellow Hill (Žlutý kopec) covers historical water tanks. For centuries, the city utilized water from the Svratka river; despite extension of the water supply in 1853, the quantity and quality of the supplied water were no longer sufficient. Therefore, in 1863, a competition was announced for construction of a new water supply. Construction of the water treatment plant on Yellow Hill started in 1869 and was completed in 1872. These underground halls give the impression of another world of civilizations lost long ago. The City of Brno and TIC BRNO make the first of the water tanks accessible to the public and for film-shooting purposes.

TEMPLE OF STONE: WATER TANKS AT ŠPILBERK

Špilberk castle invites you to the first water tanks in Brno made accessible to the public. Both tanks from 1870–71 and 1900 were created as reservoirs of water for the city; since the 1920s, they have been dilapidating. After the renovation, the Brno City Museum has located a lapidary collection here – in this impressive space, therefore, you can see ancient sculptures.

10-Z BUNKER

10-Z is the code name for supposedly the most secret bunker in Brno from the time of Communism meant for municipal and regional representatives. It was originally built during the Nazi occupation as a civil defense (Luftschutz) shelter to protect from American and Soviet bombardment of Brno. This important technical monument has its own water supply, electricity generator, and telephone switchboard. You will receive a map at the entrance and can set out on your own to explore the winding tunnels.
